

Bloomberg Tax

Special Report

2025 Projected U.S. Tax Rates

Introduction

Many amounts in the Internal Revenue Code (IRC) are adjusted for inflation annually based on cost-of-living adjustments.

Using the September 2023 through August 2024 Chained Consumer Price Index for all Urban Consumers (C-CPI-U) data released by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, Bloomberg Tax has projected 2025 inflation-adjusted amounts for many key figures in the IRC.¹

Bloomberg Tax has indicated instances where a literal application of an IRC provision may result in an amount different from the amount Bloomberg Tax expects the IRS to publish when it releases official inflation-adjusted amounts later in 2024. Please note that this report does not contain an exhaustive list of every figure that is adjusted for inflation.

2. Unearned Income of Children (“Kiddie Tax”) (§1(g))

For tax years beginning in 2025, the amount in §1(g)(4)(A)(ii)(I), which is used to reduce the net unearned income reported on the child's return that is subject to the “kiddie tax,” is $1,350. This amount is the same as the $1,350 limited standard deduction amount provided in §63(c)(5)(A), adjusted for inflation.

The same $1,350 amount is used for purposes of §1(g)(7) (that is, to determine whether a parent may elect to include a child's gross income in the parent's gross income and to calculate the “kiddie tax”). For example, one of the requirements for the parental election is that a child's gross income is more than the amount referenced in §1(g)(4)(A)(ii)(I) but less than 10 times that amount; thus, a child's gross income for 2025 must be more than $1,350 but less than $13,500.
